Details

We try to think along the lines of a customer profile when designing our Gifts. For instance when it comes to designing this particular gift, we're thinking of the things that a 40 year old man or woman would like to receive. Then we design a series of gift ideas for our customers to consider when they want to send a gift to such a person. There is a fine balancing line between creating gifts, you'd like to receive yourself and imposing your tastes on others, but in the context of idea generation freely provided, then what better way to design 40th Birthday Gifts than to ask someone from that age demographic what they would like to receive for their fortieth Birthday.
